Food & Beverage service at Washington DC Convention Center opens successfully using a Quest POS system

Melbourne 18th April 2003 – Quest Retail Technology is pleased to report the successful operation of the Quest Point of Sale system at the opening event at the Washington DC Convention Center.

The DC Convention Center, a new 2.3 million square foot facility, is the largest building in Washington DC and it opened successfully on the 2nd April with a 60,000 delegate convention.

There are currently 66 of the new Quest VSR dual line concession tills installed in the Food Court, with an additional 20 VSR tills to be installed as the facilities are expanded. The Quest Task Venue software provides the back office facilities.

This is an exciting project as it breaks new ground by utilizing a cashless venue approach when phase 2 is opened on July 1st, which includes an 18,500 Sq. Ft. restaurant called Executive Orders. Each delegate receives a magnetic card on entering, which they use for all their purchases. When exiting the card is redeemed and the charges are paid to the cashier in the normal way using credit card or cash.

This important project is being carried out in association with Centerplate a Volume Services America company who have the food and beverage concessions at the Washington DC Convention Centre. This is one of a number of projects that Quest has successfully completed with Centerplate.
